Module Description
The module “Art, Design & Changing Societies” conveys knowledge about current discourses and skills in the field of design, applied art and aesthetics. The interrelations between the disciplines and their social and cultural references are discussed as well as the effectiveness of artistic interventions within social dynamics.

In the Open Design Studio, participants develop complex, individual design or art projects. Methods and content of the module “Art, Design & Changing Societies” are applied and deepened. The expertise in visual and spatial communication is expanded through the use of different techniques and technologies (e.g. 3D printing).

Learning Objectives
In this module, graduates deepen their understanding of the interrelations between design, art, aesthetics, culture and society. They gain insights into arts-based research and innovative, sustainable design strategies.
